---

ULC is pleased to announce the publication of the Fourth Edition of CAN/ULC-S602-03, Aboveground Steel Tanks for the Storage of Combustible Liquids Intended to be used as Heating and/or Generator Fuels. This Standard has been approved by the ULC Committee on Stationary Steel Storage Containers for Flammable and Combustible Liquids, and has been published under the date of November 2003.

The following key changes have been implemented since the Third Edition (February 1992):

- The application in the title has changed from "Fuel Oil and Lubricating Oil" to "Heating and/or Generator Fuels."
- A Glossary of terms has been added.
- Requirements are provided for double wall and closed secondary containment.
- Tests related to secondary containment have been introduced.
- Requirements for Installation Instructions and Shipping have been specified.
- New tank support, stability and handling tests are specified.

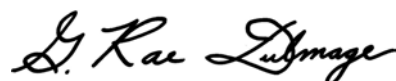

A Certification Bulletin announcing effective date for new requirements will be released shortly.
